

Smith Library Opens Computer Training Lab

Need help editing your resume? Want to use social networking to advertise and promote your small business? Are your kids or grandkids on Facebook but you are just not sure how to connect? Make a resolution to brush up on your computer skills this New Year at the City of Wylie's Smith Public Library.

Computer classes are now close to home at the recently opened state of the art computer lab located at 300 Country Club Road, Building 300. The dedicated classroom features 20 computers, video projection, sound and an instructor's workstation. The winter session begins Thursday, January 5 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. with Excel I followed by Social Networking for Small Business on Saturday, January 7 from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Classes are free and programmed for ages 18 and up. Registration for the early January classes has already begun and will remain open until classes are full. Registration for future classes will open two weeks before the start of class and may be completed in person at the Help Desk, by phone at 972-516-6250, option 3, or by e-mail at libraryclasses@wylietexas.gov. Go to www.wylietexas.gov/library for a complete calendar of classes.

The goal of the computer lab is to offer individuals and groups in the community an opportunity to improve computer skills, access information and be life-long learners. The computer lab was funded by the Broadband Technology Opportunities program, a federal stimulus grant and the City of Wylie. For more information call 972-516-6250, option 3.
